Introduction

This Planning Proposal explains the intent of, and justification for, the proposed amendment of Sydney Local Environmental Plan 2012 to introduce mobile food vending vehicles (food trucks) as exempt development on Council-owned roads.

The proposal has been prepared in accordance with Section 55 of the Environmental Planning and Assessment Act 1979 (the Act) and the relevant Department of Planning Guidelines, including A Guide to Preparing Local Environmental Plans and A Guide to Preparing Planning Proposals.

Background

The City is developing a Night Time City Policy, informed by extensive research and community feedback. Common themes from the consultation process included concerns about safety, a lack of night time diversity and suggestions for late night dining options such as the food trucks found in New York City, Los Angeles, Bangkok and London.

A diverse food truck culture is emerging internationally. The attractiveness of food trucks in other countries is a combination of great tasting food with unusual flavour mixes, affordable price ranges, a dedication to customer service that generates loyal followers and brightly decorated vehicles that are visually an interesting part of the streetscape.

Vendors differentiate their business with unusual names, strong branding designs, themes (for example vegan, cross-cultural recipes) and menus that capture the diversity and richness of their city's food culture. Many of these international food trucks develop cult followings, guiding their fans to truck locations via social media updates.

Food trucks also enable emerging young chefs and cooks to present innovative new food trends to potential customers in city locations that could not be captured through the traditional model of a café or restaurant. The quality of offerings from food trucks are celebrated through large scale award events – such as the Vendy Awards across the US.

The Sydney Food Trucks 12-month trial is part of the objective of creating vibrant nightlife to take away foods from mobile food vending vehicles (food trucks) located at various locations around the City. A more flexible approach to enable the operation of mobile food vending vehicles (food trucks) on Council-owned roads will enable a greater chance for business viability.

This Planning Proposal relates to the exemption of mobile food vending vehicles (food trucks) to allow them to operate on Council-owned roads. It is proposed to include an entry in Schedule 2 – Exempt Development – in the Sydney Local Environmental Plan 2012 to allow the operation of mobile food vending vehicles (food trucks) to be exempt development, subject to meeting certain criteria. These criteria will be detailed in a Local Approvals Policy prepared under Section 68 of the Local Government Act 1993.

The inclusion of mobile food vending vehicles (food trucks) as exempt development will eliminate the need for an activity assessment under Part 5 or a development consent under Part 4 of the Environmental Planning and Assessment Act 1979, in favour of a simpler approvals process.

The Planning Controls

Under the provisions of the Environmental Planning and Assessment Act 1979, the operation of a mobile food vending vehicle (food truck) currently requires development consent in accordance with Part 4 'Development Assessment' or an assessment under Part 5 'Environmental Assessment' where development consent is not required. The purpose of a Part 5 assessment is to ensure public authorities fully consider environmental issues before they undertake or approve activities that don't require development consent.

Under Part 5 of the Environmental Planning and Assessment Act 1979, a determining authority cannot carry out an activity or grant an approval to a development likely to significantly affect the environment, unless it has considered a Review of Environmental Factors (REF) in relation to the proposed activity.

Mobile food vending vehicles or food trucks is defined as a development activity in accordance with the Environmental Planning and Assessment Act 1979 and therefore requires consent, unless is it exempt development.

Exempt development is defined as development that may be carried out without the need for development consent under Part 4 or for assessment under Part 5 of the Environmental Planning and Assessment Act 1979. Development is exempt if it is of minimal environmental impact. However, development that is exempt from development consent is not exempt from any other approval, licence, permit or authority that is required.

A number of issues have risen in relation to undertaking a Part 5 assessment for the operation of mobile food vending vehicles (food trucks) on city roads, which is required because approvals are being issued for the use of this land.

Mobile food vending as exempt development in the Sydney Local Environmental Plan 2012 will allow the City to issue Local Government Approvals under Section 68 of the Act without undertaking a Part 5 assessment or granting development consent under Part 4. Section 68 of the Local Government Act 1993 identifies the activities that require approval of Council including trading on community land. The conditions of an approval issued under Section 68 of the Local Government Act 1993 will be placed on each operator stipulating matters such as the management, noise restrictions trading hours and health requirements.

Development consent for the use of 10 nominated sites as part of the Food Trucks Trial 2012 has already been granted under the Environmental Planning and Assessment Act 1979 for a trial period of 12 months. By including mobile food vending vehicles (food trucks) as exempt development, further development applications to extend their operation at the conclusion of the 12-month trial period will not be required for locations on Council-owned roads.

Approximately ten vendors were selected as part of the Sydney Food Trucks Trial 2012 and will rotate between approved locations throughout the City. The mobile food vending vehicles (food trucks) have been approved with detailed operational measures contained within a Plan of Management that was prepared to accompany each of the development applications. The Plans of Management prepared addressed matters such as hours of operation, access, risk management, trading intervals. The Plans of Management and recommended conditions provide an adequate platform by which to manage noise and activity and will ensure that food trucks have a minimal environmental impact.

This approvals process has demonstrated that the operation of a food truck on Council-owned roads will only have a minimal impact on the environment.

The environmental impacts of the operation of food trucks have been considered and subsequently conditions of approval are in place to ensure that the overall environmental impact of mobile food vending vehicles (food trucks) is minimal. The operation of food trucks is therefore identified as being of minimal environmental impact and can be carried out without the need for development consent.

Part 1 – Objectives or Intended Outcomes

To enable the operation of mobile food vending vehicles (food trucks) on Council-owned roads as exempt development.

Part 2 – Explanation of the Provisions

This Planning Proposal seeks to introduce mobile food vending vehicles (food trucks) as exempt development on Council-owned roads.

It is proposed to amend the Sydney Local Environmental Plan 2012, by inserting a new exempt development category in Schedule 2 as follows:

Mobile Food Vending Vehicles

- (1) Must be located on Council-owned roads within existing lawful car parking spaces (excludes classified roads under the Roads Act 1993).
- (2) Must be operated in accordance with an approval under Section 68 of the Local Government Act 1993.

The Planning Proposal does not seek to amend any other controls in the Sydney Local Environmental Plan 2012.

Part 3 – Justification

Section A – Is the planning proposal the result of any strategic study or report

The City is developing a Night Time City Policy, informed by extensive research and community feedback. One of the key aims of OPEN Sydney is to ensure that Sydney's night time economy achieve sustainable economic growth and creates a variety of opportunities for multiple night-time experiences in Sydney.

Open Sydney identified the need to expand the diversity of take away food offerings currently available in Central Sydney and the wider local government area. Mobile food vending vehicles (food trucks) will cater for people looking for inexpensive and quality take away dining.

The Sydney Food Trucks Trial emerged from the OPEN Sydney consultation in mid 2011 where many people said they wanted more and better quality late night food options including Food Trucks. The Trial was one of the initiatives included in the OPEN Sydney Discussion Paper which was on exhibition during October to December 2011.

Currently, the food trucks are limited to regular trading on 10 sites for which development consent has been granted.

The proposed LEP amendment will assist mobile food vending vehicles (food trucks) to operate on Council-owned roads within existing lawful car parking spaces. The proposed exemption of mobile food vending vehicles (food trucks) will promote greater efficiency and more productive use of Council resources in the assessment of minor development proposals.

To support the amendment is it also proposed to develop a Local Approvals Policy under the Local Government Act 1993 which will provide the framework and outline the detailed circumstances and conditions under which the mobile food vending vehicles (food trucks) operate.

Section B – Is the planning proposal consistent with the local council’s community plan, or other local strategic plan

Mobile food vending vehicles (food trucks) as exempt development on Council-owned roads is consistent with the objectives of the Sustainable Sydney 2030 Strategic Plan and OPEN Sydney. The Sustainable Sydney 2030 Strategic Plan is the vision for the sustainable development of the City to 2030 and beyond. It includes 10 strategic directions to guide the future of the City, as well as 10 targets against which to measure progress.

One of the key aims of OPEN Sydney is the need to expand the diversity of take away food offerings currently available in Central Sydney and the wider local government area.

Food trucks as exempt development on Council-owned roads within lawful car parking spaces provides an opportunity to realise the vision for a vibrant and global city and the realisation of many aspects of Sustainable Sydney 2030 Strategic Plan and OPEN Sydney. Of these, the following Directions are relevant:
