Background

The City of Sydney is planning a social and cultural place strategy to strengthen the LGBTIQ+ community's identity and culture in the Oxford Street area.

In 2020, we consulted our communities on ways to revitalise Oxford Street while recognising its cultural and community significance. In 2021, we asked for feedback on proposed planning rules for the Oxford Street cultural and creative precinct.

We heard that people value the strong connection between Oxford Street and the LGBTIQ+ community. People asked if more could be done to keep Oxford Street a safe and welcoming hub and celebrate the LGBTIQ+ history of the area.

The draft strategy sets out principles and priorities to recognise, preserve, and promote the significant connection the LGBTIQ+ community has with Oxford Street. It contains a series of actions for each priority area that will be driven and delivered collaboratively between the City and the community.

The draft strategy was on public exhibition between 12 April 2021 and 24 May 2022.

This document summarises key findings and outlines activities that took place during the public exhibition of the draft strategy.

All feedback captured in this report will be considered before reporting back to Council.

Engagement summary

From 12 April to 24 May 2022, we asked the community for feedback on the LGBTIQ+ social and cultural place strategy for Oxford Street.

Activities included a stakeholder notification email, online information sessions and an online survey.

This report outlines the community engagement activities that took place and summarises the key findings from the consultation.

Survey respondents

Survey respondent snapshot

167 people surveyed

72% male, 20% female,
3% non-binary, 1% transgender

63% identify as gay, 19% as queer,
9% bisexual, 8% lesbian

49% are aged 31 – 50 years

74% attend LGBTIQA+ events in the precinct
69% visit for shopping, dining or entertainment

There was a good spread of age ranges surveyed (under 20 to 80 years old), with the highest proportion of respondents aged between 41 – 50 years (26%), closely followed by 31 – 40 years (23%).

Survey respondents were asked to nominate the gender and identity which best described them and were able to nominate more than one identity option. The majority of surveys responses came from gay men (86 respondents, 51%).

People who identify as Bisexual are much less likely to attend LGBTIQA+ events in the precinct. Only 15% of that group gave this response, compared to 74% on average. They are more likely to visit for shopping, dining, or entertainment (92%).

Conversely, people who identify as lesbian or queer are more likely to attend to LGBTIQA+ events (82% respectively) and less likely to visit for entertainment (27% & 19% respectively). The respondents' relationship with Oxford St remained consistent with the average across all other age groups and identities.

17 people surveyed (12%) identify as heterosexual and felt a connection to the Oxford St precinct because they live, work or own a business in the precinct, visit for entertainment or to attend LGBTIQA+ events.

Survey responses came from 65 different postcodes, representing a good mix of people who live in the Oxford Street precinct, and people who visit the precinct from other areas.

25% of responses came from people with a Darlinghurst/Surry Hills post code

52% of responses came from postcodes within the City of Sydney LGA

16% of responses came from postcodes more than 30 minutes travel by car from Oxford Street, including 4% (7 responses) from interstate (South Australia, Queensland and Tasmania)

Key findings

Survey responses

Survey respondents were asked to rate the importance of the priorities and actions identified in the strategy. The results show very strong community support for the draft strategy's vision and the proposed framework.

Respondents were then asked if there were any other priorities or actions that are important to achieve the vision of the strategy, and if there was anything else they would like to tell us about the strategy. These comments, along with comments from email submissions, are summarised below.

The priority considered most important is "The local community is safe and supported" (96% rate this as very important or important).

The action area considered most important is "Deliver a safe and welcoming environment across the precinct" (83% said this was important to them).

For men, key comment themes were LGBTIQ+ business (8 comments), inclusion (6 comments) and spaces for community gather (6 comments).

For women, key comment themes were inclusion and safety (2 comments each).

For non-binary people, the key comment theme was safety (1 comment).

Key themes

Inclusion

Many comments emphasised the importance of inclusion and asked for the strategy to consider the needs of the whole community. Some comments expressed concern that the strategy could segregate the community. Some suggested an action to include and educate people from outside the LGBTIQ+ community, to increase respect and a sense of connection between the LGBTIQ+ community and the broader community. Some asked for the strategy to consider how the LGBTIQ+ community interacts with other parts of the community. One suggestion was LGBTIQ+ ambassadors to promote the work and values of the community within and to the general population.

Other suggestions were to consider welcoming spaces for families and children, to consider alcohol free options, to entice a mixed generation to Oxford Street, to acknowledge the role of people who come to Oxford Street from outside the precinct and to include more references to the culturally diverse heritage of the community.

Several comments emphasised the importance of accessible venues and asked for accessible and gender-neutral toilets.

Spaces for community to gather

The importance of space in the precinct for LGBTIQ+ community members to meet, socialise, build relationships, and feel safe was raised repeatedly in submissions, stakeholder workshops, community sessions and industry meetings.

People asked for events to be inclusive of all segments of the LGBTIQ+ community, but also for spaces that were safe for particular parts of the community (e.g., gay only bars, safe spaces for lesbians, safe spaces for gender diverse people, safe spaces for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander LGBTIQ+ people).

Active support for business, nightlife, and the use of outdoor spaces

While the strategy does address the local business community and increasing LGBTIQ+ cultural and social spaces, many comments asked for the strategy to go further in these areas.

Nightlife venues were identified as important to the LGBTIQ+ community, and some comments asked for the strategy to consider space and support and for high quality nightclubs, fewer restrictions, and more flexible licensing for late night venues.

Many comments asked for more active support for local businesses, such as affordable rents, a business website, support for renovations and coordinated management for the precinct.

The right business mix, attracting more businesses to the area, encouraging and elevating LGBTIQ+centric businesses with incentives were all identified as important.

People expressed support for the business charter proposed in the strategy.

A strong theme was increased use of outdoor spaces for year-round celebrations on the street. Suggestions included outdoor performances, cultural events, street performers, markets, outdoor dining and drinking options.

These comments emphasised that outdoor events provide an opportunity to bring people together and increase the visibility of the LGBTIQ+ community.

Taylor Square was called out as an important space in the precinct, with comments asking for it to be clearly identified with signage, enhanced with artwork or historic interpretation and to be better utilised as an event space.

Transport to and around the precinct

The theme of a walkable precinct is linked to themes of increased use of outdoor space, improving the streetscape and safety. People said it was important to make the precinct safe and easy to walk around with wider footpaths, good lighting at night, reducing traffic/speeds, and more pedestrian areas. Better public transport and more parking were suggested to improve access for LGBTIQ+ community members who live outside the precinct. One comment suggested end of trip facilities for drag queens and performers working in the precinct.

Represent all LGBTIQ+ people

Some comments expressed concern about a focus on spaces for gay men and asked for the strategy to consider and make space for all LGBTIQ+ people. Recognition and safe spaces for lesbians was raised as a suggested priority. Suggested actions on this theme were public outdoor events on visibility days (especially trans-visibility days), elevating the voices of trans, youth and BIPOC (Black, Indigenous and people of colour) people in business and other projects, extending equality to marginalised groups, and supporting venues and spaces for queer women and gender diverse people.

Clean and beautify the streets

Many comments asked for improvement to the streetscape. People asked for the precinct to be cleaned, well maintained, and beautified with lights, colour, artwork and greenery. These comments were often linked to improving pedestrian safety and attracting more people to support local businesses.

Suggested partners

Survey respondents were asked if they would like to recommend a community organisation, business, landholder or government agency who could partner with the City to deliver any actions.

Places of significance

Priority one of the LGBTIQ+ social and cultural place strategy for Oxford Street is to recognise and remember historic LGBTIQ+ places and spaces. To achieve this, the draft strategy proposes working with the community to identify important sites of significance to LGBTIQ+ people. Survey respondents were asked to identify and comment on sites they considered to be significant through the online mapping tool social pinpoint. The information will support the City's heritage planners, historians and archivists in connecting stories to physical locations within the Oxford Street precinct.

19 places of significance were added to the map.

Priority 3. increasing LGBTIQ+ cultural and social spaces	Total	City of Sydney response
Spaces for community to gather	12
Provide space for community to meet and build relationships, such as cultural spaces (galleries, bookshops, pride centre, spaces for artists and performers) and social spaces (cafes, community spaces) that are genuinely for LGBTIQ+ community members across a range of identity groups.
LGBTIQ+ museum	8
Ensuring that spaces/events/installations reflect both men and women. Although lesbians tend to go out less than gay men, recognition and safe spaces for lesbians are also essential	1
Allow gay only bars to operate as a safe place for gay men. Many bars have become mixed which is good, but many gay men need their own safe place	1
Having spaces that are safe for gender diverse people and queer women on Oxford St amongst the gay male spaces would be amazing	1
Ensure inclusivity & accessibility of venues	1
Daytime options (e.g., a queer pottery space)	1
Gallery and retail space for queer artists & designers	1
It is important to have space for a large-scale Gay nightclub	1
More accessible public spaces	1
Combination of artistic and hospitality venues that target different price points, not just high end. It needs to include free and low-cost venues.	1
Onsite area for drag performers to get ready	1
Repurpose the former electrical substation at Taylor Square into a Wedding Chapel and community space	1

Priority 4. increasing LGBTIQ+ visibility and identity throughout the Precinct	Total	City of Sydney response
More outdoor spaces and events	12
Hold more outdoor events to publicly celebrate LGBTIQ+ occasions. Utilise outdoor spaces like Taylor Square, Oxford Street, and the courthouse forecourt for social activities like markets, outdoor dining and entertainment.
Promote the area as a LGBTIQ+ destination	6
Promote LGBTIQ+ culture within the precinct with visible monuments, fairy lights, colour, artwork and pride banners. Consider the example of Chicago's Halsted neighbourhood.	4
support sex on premises and sex workers	2
ensure that the Sydney Mardi Gras Parade can always be held on Oxford Street.	1
Concern that LGBTIQ+ culture is segmented (linked to support for outdoor celebrations to create more visibility and understanding)	1
strongly oppose the change of the rainbow flag to the progress rainbow flag and changing the rainbow crossing	1
Would love to see LGBTIQ+ visibly more in and around Oxford Street	1

Priority 5. ensuring the local community is safe and supported.	Total	City of Sydney response
Safety	15
Consider safety issues such as police attitudes and responses, a safe environment for the homeless, good lighting at night and pedestrian safety.
Accessible/gender neutral toilets	2
Provide social, affordable, and accessible housing	2
Improve access to support services and programs for the LGBTIQ+ community	1

Priority 5. ensuring the local community is safe and supported.	Total	City of Sydney response

Concern that it is temporary until World Pride	1
Determine whether Oxford Street is still a significant place for the LGBTIQ+ community	1
Don't kill our gay cultural it's our home or safe place	1
Identity politics is not a planning objective	1
Increase investment opportunities in the precinct	1
Increase residential density	1
Need to step out of our "safety zone" and embrace the world	1

Over the past 12 months, we consulted our communities on ways we could revitalise Oxford Street

We were also asked if more could be done to celebrate the LGBTIQ+ history of the area

We listened to community feedback about aspirations, needs and concerns for Oxford Street, and have developed a draft LGBTIQ+ social and cultural place strategy

The strategy is one of only a handful in the world to explore ways to protect and preserve LGBTIQ+ culture and communities, and the first of its kind in Australia

Priorities of the strategy

1. Recognise historic LGBTIQ+ places and spaces
2. Increase visibility and reflect the LGBTIQ+ communities
3. Sustain the local character of Oxford Street
4. Increase LGBTIQ+ cultural spaces
5. Ensure local communities are safe and supported
